Appalachian Trail Thru—Hiker

By Dick Pritts

John Duncan introduced Jamy Beth Suminski who completed the 2189 miles of the Appalachian Trail in 2015. Jamy indicated that the desire to hike the AT started when she was 11 years old. Her dream was put off as she attended SCC for studies in outdoor leadership. Jamy always cherished working outdoors and worked in the wilderness with children and veterans with PTSD. She sees her future as a big, bright opportunity and is now attending WCU studying recreational therapy.

Early in her hike on the AT she met Sharon and Nate. From them she learned that it is a long grueling hike and there is often a desire to quit so that if that desire came up she was to hold that thought for the next 48 hours. Jamy said that at the end of that 48 hours she was always in a better space by hiking through and seeing things that keep you there. She started her hike on February 10th and the weather was fairly cooperative. Jamy indicated that she kept a “dry pack” with dry socks so that when she needed a lift in spirits she would put on dry socks. She reported that she made six to eight good friends on the trail. Two such friends hiked from time to time about eight hundred miles of the trail with her.

Jamy had an AT name that she used instead of her name. She said she wanted it to be masculine and came up with Eddy Spoudazo. Eddy means calm, safe and Spoudazo in Greek means putting forth diligent efforts. Jamy said family and friends supported her trek and sent care packages and encouraging notes. She saw friends and family along the trail and said she learned what people will do for each other and now has more faith in humanity. Jamy said she does not want being an AT thru hiker to be her identifying factor but she wants to hold it dear but not hang on to it. One thing she said she learned from the hike was that everyone is a lot more durable than you give yourself.

Shadow Day with students in the Spring and Ethical Business Award Soon!

There will be another shadow day for students to shadow Rotarian Professionals this spring. The first one was a success and we encourage Rotarians to take part. Those who participated from the club were: Cindy Rodgers, Marvin Ramsey, Jeff Gillette and Judy Chapman. Rotary is a service organization focused on our youth and it's a great way for our young people of tomorrow to see first hand our Rotarians at work and potential careers they maybe interested in. We will also be recognizing an ethical business or individual coming soon. If you know of someone or a business that has done something showing high ethical standards See or email

Karen Kenney or Rich Peoples.

Assistant Governors for 16-17 Getting Trained!

7670 DGE Gary Dills conducted the 2016-17 Assistant Governor training session Saturday in Asheville. Sean Gibson was among those in attendance along with current AG John Yermack from our club. Gibson will serve as Area 1 AG next year (Franklin, Daybreak, Clay and Murphy)

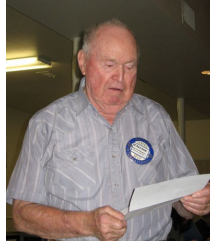

Catering Selection

PE Lenny Jordan presented the ballot to the members on the selection of the cater for our future lunches this year. The members were instructed to pick 2 from the 4 that prepared a sample of their meals over the last couple of months. The selected two caterers will alternate monthly so the club will get a variety of upgraded selections. The results will be announced at an upcoming meeting.
